

Areas of ecological importance

We use criteria to identify areas of special importance for maintaining healthy ecosystems and healthy oceans. These go beyond habitats to consider the entire water column, from seafloor to surface:

- Unique/endemic
- Vulnerable/fragile
- Special life stages
- Threatened/declining

- Naturalness
- Biological diversity
- Biological productivity
- Ecosystem functions and services

