

Who relies on this area for stages in their life?

Some habitats are important to the development of young animals. These beds of finally branching algae can be nurseries for very young scallops and mussels.

Department of Conservation
Te Papa Atawhai